Morgan Again Threatens Kentucky. Acting upon information furnished by his spies, who are numerous in all parts of the mmonwealth, it is not improbable that the oel Morgan deems Kentucky sufficiently lear of Federal troops to warrant him in undertaking another marauding expedition into the State. We have positive assurances that small bands of rebel cavalry have been hovering around our southern border for some time. They have been making regular incursions into the counties of Monroe, Lincoln, Allen, and Wayne, and have committed depredations in that region. It was but yesterday that we announced the destruction, by a squad of cavalry, of the ferryboat at Burkesville, and we have since received intelligence confirmatory of that outrage, and of other outrages in the same vicinity.

We have heard a rumor that Morgan, with the main force under his command, had crossed the Cumberland at some point between Nashville and Clarksville, and that it was his design to march at once towards Lexington. Other reports represent him as entering the State at other points. These rumors as to his designs upon the State may be idle, but we do no wrong when we give them publicity, when such publicity may lead to the consummation of plans which may thwart the rebel leader's

We hear from Cincinnati that a number of refugees had arrived in that city from the interior of Kentucky, having left their homes through fear of the approach of Morgan's men, his command now numbering, it is said, four thousand cavalry. These refugees report that the bankers and business men of Lexington anticipate another Morgan raid, and have consequently gathered their money and valuables together, preparatory to an escape upon Morgan's approach.

CAPTURE OF SHELBYVILLE, TENN.—We are informed that a telegraphic despatch was received in this city yesterday, a short time before telegraphic communication with Nashville was interrupted, to the effect that Shelbyville, Tenn., had been captured by the Federal troops. Shelbyville is in Bedford county, directly south of Murfreesboro, and about forty miles distant on the route to Tul-

We learn from the Nashville Dispatch that a large quantity of quinine was discovered among some goods shipped to Nashville on one of the recently arrived steamboats from this city. The consequence of this attempt at smuggling has been the seizure of the contraband shipper's goods and a good deal of delay to the other shippers.

Information was received at Suffolk, on Wednesday night, that the rebel Gen. Pryor had crossed the Blackwater, with three reginine hundred cavalry.

Last evening General Corcoran received orders from General Peck to advance from Suffolk at 12 o'clock midnight, to find and attack the enemy. At the appointed time our forces moved. They proceeded along the road toward the Blackwater and Carrsville for nine miles, without meeting apposition. miles, without meeting opposition. At last, on arriving in the neighborhood of what is designated as "the deserted house" (ten miles from Suffolk), our advance met that of the enemy, the latter command having bivouacked enemy's position. A portion of our artillery was brought up just about the time that two of the enemy's pieces opened on us. In less than half an hour all our artillery and that of the rebels became engaged. We were in such a position that it was possible to see the flashes of the enemy's guns, thereby enabling us to fire directly at the rebel pieces. After two hours and a half of cannonading the fire on the part of the rebels became less brisk and continuous. This was evidence to us that they were retreating or were preparing to retreat. Immediately Gen. Corcoran or-tions that the infantry should charge with the bayonet, and that the cavalry should also charge and push right on, and, if unsuccessful in breaking the rebel line of battle, to fall back and allow the infantry to go on.

To advanced in this manner, our main object being to capture, if possible, the guns covering the retreat of the rebels. As we advanced the enemy fell back, and on our gaining the late field of operations we found the bird had flown—the rebels having left one piece to cover their retreat, and limbered it up in double-quick time when we advanced, and got it away.

for nearly a mile, and so rapidly that they had to abandon many of their killed and wounded. Many of their dead even now lie on the field, and our surgeons are affording relief to not a few of their wounded.

Gen. Corcoran went down with Col. Spear to reconnoitre, when the rebels espied them and threw over shot and a charge of grape. The shot fell directly in front of General C., throwing dirt all over him, and the charge of throwing dirt all over him, and the charge of grape shot Col. Spear's horse under him.

After driving the rebels from their battle-grounds we continued to follow them up, until they took up another position about two miles beyond, at the forks of a road.

Gen. Corcoran has just determined to move to the right of this last rebel position, on what is known as the old Franklin Road, in order to try and outflank them. This movement is to try and outflank them. This movement is made more to save loss of life than to defea made more to save loss of life than to defeat the rebels; for we have force enough here (with the reinforcements that have just ar-rived) to advance directly on the enemy and drive him before us. The rebels' position is just at the end of an immense open space. Over this we would have to advance (giving him the advantage of seeing us) in order to make a direct attack.

At this time the engagement has lulled a little. The fight has lasted for seven hours. The prospect seems good for another one.

We have taken quite a large number of

REPORT OF COL. C. L. DUNHAM. THE BATTLE OF PARKER'S CROSS ROADS HEADQUARTERS THIRD BRIGADE, PARKER'S CROSS ROADS, NEAR LEXINGTON, TENN. December 31, 1862, Brigadier-General J. C. Sullivan, Commanding Division:

Sin: In pursuance to your written order o Sta: In pursuance to your written order of yesterday (the 30th inst) I, on that day at about 2 o'clock P. M., left Huntingdon in pursuit of the enemy's forces, under General Forcest, towards Lexington, with the brigade under my command, except the 7th Tennessee, which was, by your order, left to guard the bridge north of Huntingdon.

My command cousisted of parts of two companies (B and E) of the 18th Illinois volunteer infantry, mounted, under Capt. Davis (65 men); the 50th Indiana volunteers, Lieut-Col. Wells commanding (525 men): the 123d ol. Wells commanding (525 men); the 1226 llinois, Col. Ranaker (529 men); the 39th lowa, Col. Cummings (405 men); and three pieces of the 7th Wisconsin battery under ieut. Wheelock (30 men); in all 1,534 men, ank and file.

Notwithstanding all were weary and worn

Notwithstanding all were weary and worn with constant marches and arduous duties already performed, our little force pushed vigorously forward, and reached Clarksburg, 12 miles distant, shortly after dark.

As the advance guard (the mounted infantry under Capt. Davis) approached the town, they were met and resisted by a company of the enemy. They remetly discount town, they were met and resisted by a com-pany of the enemy. They promptly dimount-ed, engaged and repulsed him, killing three, left dead on the ground.

Our column immediately moved forward into and occupied the town, without further resistance. Here we bivoucked for the night.

I ascertained from scouts whom I sent out that General Forget with a large force said that General Fornest with a large force, said to be his whole command, were bivouacked at Union church, four miles west of Clarksburg, on the road leading from McLamoresville into the Huntingdon and Lexington road at Parker's Cross Roads, five miles south of Clarksburg.

One of his foraging parties represented his forces at 8,000 strong, with twelve pieces of artillery. I immediately (2 o'clock A. M.) sent a courier to you with a despatch saying, in substance, that he was at the point above designated in seprederable force and that I signated, in considerable force, and that I ould try to coax or force a fight out of him n the morning.

My information induced me to believe that he was endeavoring to escape by way of Lexington, and hence would enter the road to that ace at the Cross Roads aforesaid.

place at the Cross Roads aforesaid.

I determined to there intercept him. Our little force had breakfasted and were in motion before day. The mounted infantry having been upon picket during the night were left as a rear guard, and company A, 50th Indiana, under Lieut. Judy, were thrown forward as an advance guard.

As the advance approached Parker's Cross Roads it was attacked by the enemy's pickets, and immediately deployed as skirmishers and pushed rapidly forward up the hill, the whole column following. As I got with the advance olumn following. As I got with the advance the top of the hill, I saw what seemed a arge company or two small ones of the enemy retreating along the road to the west, upon whom it opened a brisk fire, and the retreat became a flight to Dr. Williams's house upon a hill nearly half a mile distant, under the shelter of which and the out-buildings and timber about it they rallied besiring to ascertain whether the enemy was there in force, two guns were ordered up and threw a few shells into the surrounding Lieutenant Colonel Weils, with the 50th Indiana, was ordered forward to occupy the hill upon which the house stood, and the woods to the right, and reconnoitre. He three three companies (A, D and F,) forward as skirmisbers, following with the remainder of the regiment, and soon took the position of the regiment.

They had barely done so when the enemy opened upon them with shell from a gun upon his extreme right, and soon from another considerably further to the east, and the skirmishng party was withdrawn to the regiment at Williams's house.

Determined to ascertain, if possible, the force and disposition of the enemy, two pieces of artillery were ordered forward to the edge and just over the crest of the ridge, and having accomplished all I desired at that place and time, I ordered our fire to cease and the forces (there) to be withdrawn to the main column at the Cross Roads. Two or three of the horses of one gun having been disabled, it was gallantly taken out by a detachment of the 50th under a heavy fire of corporated. The both under a heavy fire of grape and shell.

The wagon train was placed in a hollow in the rear, with two companies, one of the 39th lowa, and one of the 122d Illinois beyond to protect it. Being out of range of musketry the artillery was ordered to open fire upon the advancing column, which it did, but from some cause seemingly with but little effect.

Our forces were immediately and rapidly moved to the north, towards the Cross Roads, and a new line formed nearly perpendicular to a prolongation of the first, along the edge and under cover of the woods, parallel to the enemy's advancing column, the left resting upon the road and the right upon an open field, with three companies thrown perpendicularly to the rear in the edge of the woods, to cover the right flank, and a vigorous attack was commenced.

The enemy at this time had one battery on the ridge in front of and parallel to our line, and one on a ridge nearly perpendicular to but beyond our line to the right, so situated as to enable him to concentrate a fire upon several portions of our line and to enflade a part of it, and his fire had become terrible in its intensity. I determined to take his batteries; at all hazards, the one on the right.

The requisite orders had been given, and I was riding along the line to see that they were properly understood, when we were suddenly and furiously attacked from the rear by a heavy dismounted force which had, under cover of the hills and woods beyond, turned our right flank and was moving to the rear of our right flank and was moving to the rear of our main line, in a direction nearly parallel to it and between it and that of two companies

At the same time a regiment of cavalry charged up the Lexington road from the south towards the rear of our left.

This was the crisis of the day, and nobly did our gallant men meet it. The main line was faced at once to the rear, and drove the enemy back, inflicting a heavy loss in killed and wounded, and taking a large number of

The cavalry charging up the road was also completely and severely repulsed by the two companies protecting our rear, who were promptly put in position for that purpose under the direction of Adjutant Simpson of my staff; but it rallied and made a second charge upon them, and was again repulsed.

It had barely got into position when its right was furiously charged by a heavy cavalry force from the south, before which it staggered and fell slightly back; but two companies (H, Capt. Scott, and C, Capt. Marsh), holding the left, quickly changed front and poured into the flank of the charging force a murderous fire, under which it broke and fled, and the right immediately rallied and resumed its place. This substantially closed the fighting of the day, it being about 2 P. M.

The repulse of the attack upon our rear had brought our line back to Red Mound where our first had been formed, but at nearly right

I was passing along it speaking words of congratulation and encouragement to the men, when a flag of truce, borne by an aid of Gen. Forrest, approached. I rode forward and demanded his message. He answered, "the General understands that you have surrendered." I replied, "the General is entirely mistaken, we have never thought of surrendering." He said a white flag was hoisted. I answered, "you are mistaken, or if not, it was done without my authority or knowledge, and you will so report to your General. you will so report to your General,

In the meantime, Commissary Sergeant Thompson, of the 50th Indiana, had informed me that, when the charge had been made upon the two companies left to protect the train and our rear, the wagoners had become panic stricken, and had driven the train northwestwardly into a hollow, where it had been captured, and that with a single company he could rear I turned to the 39th Iowa and asked, "will

No enemy being found, company F, Lieutenant Jones, was sent across a skirt of woods to the north to reconnoitre, and soon came up with and engaged a company of the enemy's mounted men at a house a little west of north from that of Dr. Williams, and drove them back across a large field, up and over the back across a large field, up and over the crest of a ridge.

The recall was sounded and they returned position. It is reported to me by Lieut.-Col. When it is recollected that this is a new regiment, having had little opportunity for drill, that this is not only its first engagement but its first march, that for nearly two hours it seemed entirely forgetful of his own sufferings in his efforts to rally his men. Color Corporal Armstrong also attracted particular attention, for, although his companion had fallen at his side, pierced by several balls, yet he was ready at every command to put down his flag at a rallying point. With the exception of this single incident, my entire command throughout the day manifested the greatest enthusiasm and the most perfect confidence in their success, and at no time more than the moment before your arrival with the other brigade. I should also especially mention Capt. Silence and Lieut. John R. Simpson, own horse was shot under me he rode forward under a terrible fire, dismounted, and gave me his. I hope to be pardoned for also mentioning a gallant little feat of a private of E. A. Topliff, of the battery. GEO. D. PRENTICE, Editor. IVER LUCAS, Local Editor & Reporter SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1863.

The Charleston despatch of yesterday stating that a British steamer had arrived with a valuable assorted cargo from Nassau, might be supposed by hasty readers to indicate that the arrival was in consequence of the raising or the alleged raising of the blockade. This, however, cannot be true, for the arrival of the steamer is stated to have taken place on the 29th of January, whereas the attack upon our blockading fleet by the rebel iron-clads did not occur, according to rebel accounts, til the 31st, two days afterwards. If the British steamer got into the harbor, it was of course

simply a case of eluding the blockade. The latest despatches state, that, at the tim of the attack, our iron-clads were not with our fleet. We inferred as much. The presence of the formidable rebel iron-clads in Charleston was notorious; everybody must have known that the rebel naval officers there would, by means of spies sent out in skiffs or larger craft from Fort Sumpter, keep them selves constantly informed as to the affairs o the Federal fleet so as to strike a blow at the first opportune moment; and yet, under all these circumstances of ceaseless and imminen peril, our iron-clads, the only possible reli ance of our fleet in case of an attack, were taken out of the way, leaving nothing bu wooden vessels that no human being could imagine able to withstand the rebel monster for fifteen minutes-and the rebels availed themselves of the opportunity to do exactly what any rebels with a penny's-worth o brains would have done. A more utterly enseless, stupid, wretched business than th whole thing was on the Federal side was surely never heard of in paval annals.

It appears, that, at the last accounts, the New fronsides and other formidable iron-clads which had been absent from their places when wanted, were off the harbor and in front of our wooden steamers. From the presence of such a naval force, Charleston was in expecta tion of an immediate attack. It is to be presumed that our officers in command, notwith standing their previous deplorable blunder could judge best whether to make an attack on the city or not. Only the iron-clads, we suppose, could take any important part in such an undertaking, and whether they could withstand the combined power of the great guns of Forts Sumpter and Moultrie, and the equally great guns of the almost innumerable batterie planted all around the harbor and far out from it, and all the formidable prowess of the two rebel iron-clads, is a fearful problem which only the actual trial could solve. The utmost tremendous shells, for of course they could have no power, without the co-operation of a Certainly Beauregard would see the destruction tion of the city rather than surrender it, and no doubt sooner the city would be destroye than surrendered.

This affair at Charleston adds another in stance to the long and dreary list of blunder committed in this war. It may, although the blockade will be certainly maintained as long as there is occasion for a blockade, give us no little trouble by means of disputes and com plications with those foreign Powers that have long been constantly on the lookout for reason or a pretext to insist that our blockade are null and void. Commodore Preble was neither negligent nor criminal beyond all other officers connected with our navy.

The rebels are congratulating them elves not only that the blockade of Charles ton is raised but that it cannot be renewed without a notice of sixty days. We are no advised at present as to whether or not the few days ago; but, if it was, it assuredly can be renewed without the fancied delay over which the rebels are so especially jubilant.

According to the strict law of blockade, no doubt the raising of a blockade either volun tarily or by superior force puts an end alto gether to the blockade, so that it cannot b umed without due notice anew; but du notice is not confined to any special form It may be given actually to an individus neutral as well as constructively to his Gov ament; or it may result from the notoriet; of the fact of renewal. The notice, like the blockade itself, is a question of fact. If the olockade exists in fact, and the neutral know. it in fact, the blockade is legally renewed a to such neutral, whether or not a formal no tice has been served on his Government, or for that matter, whether or not any notice has been actually served on himself. It is enough that the blockade exists and that he knows it "It is immaterial," says Kent, "in what way the neutral comes to the knowledge of th blockade. If the blockade actually exists, and he has knowledge of it, he is bound not to violate it." "The notoriety of a blockade, says Kent again, "is of itself sufficient notice of it to vessels lying within the blockaded port." The whole question is thus one of

If, therefore, the blockade of Charleston was indeed raised by force the other day, of which we yet have no certain information, there can be no reasonable doubt that it was immediate ly renewed in fact, that it now exists, and tha neutral vessels sailing toward Charleston wil be duly notified of the renewal. In other words, there is every reason to believe that the blockade, if it was raised, has been lawfull established again. Undoubtedly a specifi time must elapse in this eyent before a neutral can be considered as notified constructively through a notice to his Government; but the neutral himself may be lawfully notified at once, or, if he lies within the port of Charleston, the bare notoriety of the renewal will constitute a lawful notice to him. The idea that a notice of sixty days forms the only lawful notice of the blockade is a "thought" whose "father" is "the wish" and whose moth er is ignorance. The principal disadvantages resulting to us from the affair would be the additional trouble and expense of serving actual notice on neu trals in the vicinity or elsewhere during the term of the regular notice to their Governments. To these disadvantages should be added perhaps the embarrassing and delicate questions with foreign Governments which the suspension and renewal of the blockade might possibly occasion. All these disadvantages, how ever, could be easily overcome by decisive and statesmanlike treatment. If the blockade of Charleston was raised in reality, we can only hope that such treatment will be forthcoming thought it was—a falsehood. That despatch was dated Savannah, Feb. 1st, yet another received since, and bearing the same date, speaks of the movements of our gunboats, but makes no allusion to any attack on the fort.

DESERTIONS-KENTUCKY.-One of the most! In justice to our Indiana neighbor, the threatening and alarming evils in this war is Hon. John S. Davis, and to truth, we copy desertions. The public in general have prob- the subjoined article from the New Albany ably no conception of the extent to which this Ledger of Wednesday. We do not know that wil has gone and is going. In one of the we agree exactly with Mr. Davis in regard to middle States, we forget which, 4,000 men every measure, but we consider him a true were drafted and mustered into service, and, patriot. He has done zealously whatever he three hundred rank and file, the Colonel re- ing patriots: cently went into an examination of the wherebouts of his missing men. He had originally one thousand, and he discovered that eight hunlred were alive and seven hundred well—the atter all deserters. Gen. Halleck has from ime to time issued strong orders upon the ubject, giving notice that every deserter and every absentee without leave should invariably be punished with the atmost rigor of military law, but the orders have been the beginning and the end. Gen. Hooker, it is said, is taking resolute measures to secure the return and punishment of delinquents, and we trust that something may reasonably be expected from his well known energy, determination, and strength of purpose. Hitherto, multitudinous as the lesertions have been, only two executions for that crime, according to the Army and Navy Chronicle, have taken place since the commencement of the rebellion. Such a fact seems almost to transcend belief, but we have no doubt that it is a fact. And how is it with the Kentucky troops in respect to desertion and absenteeism without pave? We are ashamed to tell This State urnished for the Union army upwards of forty thousand soldiers, men who volunteered, swor o render faithful obedience to their officers and took the liberal bounty of the Govern ment, and some of our people would like t know where a large portion of those, who sur vive in health, now are. Their gallant com rades in the field would certainly like to know. It is true that the soldiers of Kentucky have had peculiarly great facilities for desertion as her soil has been the theatre of war and they have been repeatedly marched and countermarched in sight or almost in sight of their own homes, but this is no excuse for the crime nor any palliation of it. If they could see their homes from the ranks of the brave and noble defenders of those homes, the sight should have nerved their hearts to suffer and endure all in the common cause, and nerved their arms to strike till the last invader should fall, instead of nerving their legs to run away from the great and arduous and glorious work upon which of their own accord they had en-

We have much to say upon this subject, but we shall make our articles short that they may be the more generally read. We shall continue the discussion of it for some days. In the mean time, let all the provost marshals and all other military officers and all civil the temperature of Spitzbergen. officers do their duty vigorously in ferreting out and arresting the base deserters of their ountry's standard in the face of danger, and let every private citizen who is not a traito give whatever information he possesses that will enable the officers to lay their hands upon the recreants. The last intelligence, dated the 5th inst., from the Headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, says that the indications are that the enemy in front is very much weakenedthat his force, relying upon the impossibility of any movement on our part under existing circumstances, has withdrawn. We have re peatedly expressed our belief in the strong probability and almost certainty of such a re sult. We hope the eyes of the Government hope is that they would be able to destroy have been open to it, but we see no evidence that they have been or are. Things look as i he Government didn't look.

The Confederate Government knows that strong land force, to take possession of her. Gen. Hooker's army cannot at present or for some time to come move upon Richmond, and that, if it were even to do so, a comparatively small force behind the prodigious fortifications of the capital would be likely to keep him and his troops at bay. Full three-fourths or four-fifths of Lee's late magnificent army might just as safely be spared as not to take the railroads and to reinforce the rebel armies in North Carolina, in Tennessee, and in Mississippi, adding at least twenty-five thousand to each of them and rendering all of ham tremendously formidable if not invinc ble and even irresistible in the present situa ion and condition of our troops. We have hardly a doubt that seventy-five thousand rebel troops could leave Richmond by railroad, have ample time to give strong blows at distant points, and get back again as soon as they would be wanted. What we have a right to expect is that the Federal military and civil authorities at Washington will, if there is danger of anything of this sort, put forth the earliest possible and the greatest possible energy to counteract the machinations of the wily and skilul rebel leaders. If the great Army of the Potomac has nothing to do where it is, in the name of Mars and Bellons let it go where fighting is to be done. If the rebel armies in North Carolina, Tennessee, and Mississippi, are to be reinforce or are reinforced already by twenty-five thou sand men each, let the Union armies in North Carolina, Tennessee, and Mississippi, be reinforced by thirty thousand men each just as uick as the thing can be accomplished by uman power. Our reinforcements might not be able to reach their destinations in time, but probably the experiment is well worth trying.

In the fall of 1860, in one of our articles deprecating the election of Mr. Lincoln to the Presidency, we expressed a favorable pinion of his personal and political integrity, out added, that, if he should be elected, he would, in our belief, in less than two years after the commencement of his Administration, regret his success in the attainment of the Presdency more than almost any other man in the nation. We knew and again and again said that his election, though no cause for the dissolution of the Union, would certainly be used by the secessionists of the South as a pretext for that miserable measure, and that the civil war which must necessarily ensue would be as horrible as anything known in the history of the world. To the answer made by many Republican organs, that, if the secessionists wanted a pretext for secession, they would find it in something else if not in the election of a Republican President, we replied that the non-election of a Republican would necessi cily postpone the dreaded movement and catastrophe for at least four or five years, and that, before the end of that period, events might so change the feeling of the whole country that our glorious Union would be permanently safe. In saying that Mr. Lincoln's election would be followed by the immediate disruption of the Union, we spoke not as a prophet or even as one making pretensions to extraordinary sagacity, but as one who understood thoroughly the feelings and principles and plans of the outhern secessionists-as one who, looking from the existing causes, could see the inevitable effects as distinctly as he ever saw the stars in heaven. The catastrophe came, the war has raged nearly two years, and now it Mr. Lincoln, gazing abroad throughout the whole country that he was elected to preside over, does not, as we said he would, regret his election more than almost any other man in the nation, bitterly as millions regret it, he must be almost the weakest or worst man in

Mr. Davis's position on this question is so well known in this community, where he ives, that we did not deem it necessary to reat the matter seriously. As, however, Mr. Davis is widely known as a member for man years of our General Assembly, it is perhaps ust to him and to his friends to give an emphatic denial to the accusations brought again him by the Nashville paper. Mr. Davis ha taken no active part in political affairs sin taken no active part in political affairs since the commencement of the war, and has made no public speeches except to aid in recruiting for the Union army. He has not seen or communicated with Jesse D. Bright for several years, and has made no opposition, "factious" or otherwise, to the payment of the war tax. On the contrary, we have always understood him to favor all necessary taxation to carry the war to a successful conclusion. No man in Southern Indiana labored more incessantly than Mr. Davis in raising troops, or spent than Mr. Davis in raising troops, or spent money more freely.

What could have induced our Nashville what could have induced our Maistrie contemporary to thus go out of its way to attack and misrepresent a private citizen, who has taken no part in polities for years, we cannot imagine. Mr. Mercer, the Editor of the Union, has doubtless been made the victim of the malice or ill will of some politician in the army, whose path Mr. Davis has crossed in former days, and we have no doubt but he will correct the error into which he has fal-

LETTER FROM OLD SOLDIER. CAMP NEAR READYVILLE, TENN.,] January 27, 1863. I remember an old song sung to me by a certain little bright-eyed lady friend of mine

"There's a kind angel watching
Thy bark on its way,
Its white wings are over thee
By night as by day."

which contains these lines:

And I am sure that if a kind angel, or some other potentate equally as powerful, had not kept a kind watch over my footsteps, I never would have succeeded in making good my way to this place, through all the mud and ickets between here and Louisville: but thanks to the angel, I am now where I like to be, square up to the front, and very nearly Kentucky ever found in any other place? The 2d Kentucky went into the regiment show a record like that, and, yet be cause there are no newspaper correspondent with the regiment, her well earned fam seems about to pass into other hands. The first accounts of a battle are always ctory, and those who rush into print to vaunt their prowess are apt to be the very nes who have done nothing to deserve approbation. From all I can learn, and I have probation. From all I can learn, and I have taken great pains to be well informed, there were but two divisions on the field which did not give way during Wednesday's fight before the rebel charge. Those two were Woods's and Palmer's (Nelson's old division), yet you have scarcely heard of these divisions as being in the field. Crittenden, whom I now name as the successor of Nelson, and Kennek was greatest living General, was in reality one of the heroes of the day. He has been dearibed to me, by those who fought under him and with him, as riding over the field with the calmness of the old Roman. No impetuosity, no reckless-ness characterized his movements, but with coolness and deliberation he fought his men, and fought them well, so well, indeed, that although the enemy pressed upon him in columns six deep, he gave not an inch, but held his own and drove back the rebel tide which threatened to destroy him, and yet our rallant Crittenden's fame has been almost e amortalize their friends regardless of the erits of others. Kentucky owes the Crittenden family more than she can ever repay Father and son, Senator and warrior, great in council, great in battle, among the names of Kentucky's great, the highest place will be given the name of Crittenden. I must, however, not be carried away from the thread of my story entirely, although I must confess that I do love to praise good men.

The 22d brigade has been fortunate enough to retain its name and organization from the start, hence its laurels are its own. It will b remembered that on the field of Shiloh and in front of Corinth, under command of Col. Sedgwick, this brigade won imperishable hon-ors; and how did it fare at Murfreesboro? your readers will ask. 'Twas the first question I asked when I arrived at Murfreesboro. I fared as the brave always fare; it was sent t the front; it stood and fought as became its old renown, as the long list of killed and wounded can best testify, and the names of Cruft, Sedgwick, Engart, and Hurd were once ordit, Sedgwick, Engart, and Hurd were once more inscribed upon the temple of fame, and, as the 22d brigade fought, even so fought the 10th and 19th brigades. Nelson's old division did not forget the lessons Nelson had given them; they believed they could whip the enemy, and they did it, and here the question arises, why are such men as Hazen, Sedgwick, and Gross overlooked? Who have fought more battles or fought them better? Give ought more battles, or fought them better? Guhem their deserts. Honor to whom honor due, and on this occasion as on all others Lieut.-Col. Spencer and Major Hurd won im-perishable honor by their bravery. They eserve promotion at the hands of the Gover-or. Will they receive it? I was much grieved to learn that Lieut lorton, of the 24th Ohio, formerly ordnanc fficer on General Nelson's staff, was severely officer on General Nelson's staff, was severel wounded in the battle, and that he has bee obliged to have a leg amputated. Poor Benny! many a long ride we have had togethe He was one of Nelson's favorites, and richl he deserved it; brave and gallant, and in the prime of life, it is a hard fate to be a crippleand yet I feel thankful that his life was spare to his wife and child.

On the 24th General Polymor moved a feet to his wife and child.

On the 24th General Palmer moved a force out as far as Woodbury, and attacked and drove the enemy from that place. There does not seem to be any indications of another battle at a recent tle at present; perhaps the enemy have got tired of fighting and intend to try running again; however let that be as it may. Our men are in good spirits and when we do mee the enemy again the people may rest assured hat we will whip them. I say so because fully expect to be there to see it done. If the true of the Potomac would only accomplimething, we might end the war, but we liers of the West don't understand their advaning one day and retreating the next. Perha were the President to try our Western troops there we might take Richmond, while the army of the Potomac might be equally

There is a very great complaint here abou he mails. They are very irregular, and it to very pleasant thing to do without thou ittle letters indited by little hands and maile with tearful eyes by the pretty little girls west behind us. It is so very unpleasant th The rebel despatch in regard to an alleged attack upon a fort off Savannah by one of our turret iron-clads and two gunboats, and their repulse, turns out to be what we thought it was—a falsehood. That despatch is regard to an alleged attack upon a fort off Savannah by one of our turret iron-clads and two gunboats, and their repulse, turns out to be what we thought it was—a falsehood. That despatch is regard to an alleged attack upon a fort off Savannah by one of our turret iron-clads and two gunboats, and their repulse, turns out to be what we discount—that his face was handsome enough the that he wasn't worth it.

It if we don't get our mails regularly somebody will hear of it. Why not try the military will hear of it. Why not try the military necessity, and make the Louisville and Nash-ville railroad carry them. I, for one, would rather see all the negroes in the North sent South and set to work, than have a single letter delayed twenty-four hours on the road.

SUNDRIES—Star and Tallow Candles, German and South and set to work, than have a single letter delayed twenty-four hours on the road.

The rebel despatch in regard to an alleged attack upon a fort off Savannah by to see him married to Miss Gould. But probably she thought his character at too great a discount—that his face was handsome enough but that he wasn't worth it.

The Rumored Rebel Raid.

Damage to the Nashville Railroad. Reported Capture of Federal Troops.

A train on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad arrived from Bowling Green at 61/2 o'clock last evening. This is one of the trains which left this city for Nashville on Thursday and yesterday. It will be remembered that the passenger train which left Louisville on Thursday proceeded only so far as the vicinity of Gallatin, and that it was ordered back to Bowling Green from that point. This order was given from the fact that telegraphic communication between Nashville and Gallatin was cut off on Thursday afternoon, after the train from Nashville had passed Bowling Green on its way to this city. It was the inference of the management of the road that a | will be a work not only of surpassing present rebel force had crossed the Cumberland at some point below Nashville, and had succeded in reaching the road, and that they were tampering with the telegraphic wires, even if they had not as yet done any damage to the road. The inference was a very natural one, for there were the best reasons to believe that an indefinite force of rebel cavalry had succeeded in crossing the Cumberland from the Telegraphic communication between this city and Nashville was restored last evening, and we were placed in possession of a despatch dated Thursday evening. The despatch makes passengers who returned from Bowling Green of Kentucky. last evening report that a portion of the track has been torn up at Buck Lodge, in the vicinity of Mitchellsville, Tenn. These passengers learned that a large party of rebel cavalry made their appearance at Mitchellsville on yesterday morning and succeeded in cap tured a company belonging to the One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Illinois Infantry, and after paroling them, they tore up the track for a considerable distance, thinking by that means to detain and then capture the passenger train from this city and that from Nashville. Their designs were effectually thwarted. Gentlemen of excellent judgment, however, do not credit the above report, but express the opinion that a few rails were torn up by the rebel sympathizers who abound in the vicinity of Mitchellsville, who have been emboldened to commit the outrage by the leniency exercised toward them by the Federal troops. I them in future from committing similar acts of villainy. We have no confirmation of the report from the Bluegrass Region that that section of the State is threatened with another visit from the rebel marau ders. On the contrary, we learn that a reconnoitering party sent out from Danville to Mt. Vernon, on Tuesday, to look after John Morgan, returned to Crab Orchard on Wednesday night without hearing anything as to his whereabouts.

A train, with a through mail, will leave this city for Nashville at the usual hour this morning. We will await further intelligence from the vicinity of Gallatin with interest and with a feeling of apprehension.

THEATRE-MR. DAWSON'S BENEFIT. - The entertainment at the theatre this evening will be for the benefit of Mr. Dawson, the talented and faithful comedian of the regular company. Both as stage manager heretofore and in the line of his profession before the footlights, Mr. Dawson's permanent engagemen here has given universal satisfaction, and his grateful admirers will pay him no questionaable compliment this evening. The character of the entertainment has been admirably shaped, opening with the popular drama of Paul Pry, to be followed by the laughable farce of Thomas, and closing with Robert Ma caire, in which the beneficiary is inimitable as Jacques Strop. There will also be other aftractions-Mr. Fuller's skating scene and a brace of songs by Mr. Stewart. The theatre will be the point of attraction to-night.

AFFAIRS AT FORT DONELSON,-The repuls of the rebels at Fort Doneleon, on the Cum berland, was most signal. We learn by tele graph from Nashville that, in all probability the notorious Col. Frank McNairy, of bloodhound infamy, was killed in the engagement. The Union troops occupying the forts in the vicinity of Donelson are the Thirteenth Wisconsin, Flood's Battery, and the Fifth Iowa Cavalry. The Eighty-third Illinois is quartered in Fort Donelson, and Col. Harding commands. Col. Lowe, of the Fifth Iowa Cavdry, has general charge of Forts Donelson Henry, and Hieman.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT .- The train which left Lexington for this city yesterday afternoon was thrown from the track almost at the moment of departure, and was detained in the street in Lexington for several hours. The Feb. 2-1 train for this city, with which the Lexington train connects at Frankfort, left Frankfort last evening at the usual hour, and arrived here in due time, but brought no mail even from Frankfort, as the mail agent was detained at Lexington by the accident to the Feb.

HIGH SCHOOL LECTURE.—Dr. J. Lawrence Smith will lecture at the High School, corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, to-night, and present some recent discoveries in optics, ilustrated by new and superior apparatus. We are requested to say that, as the lecture is adapted to an adult audience, and the hall i of limited capacity, children will please not present themselves for admission. The lecture will commence at precisely half-past seven.

The skating exhibition given by champion skater of the the world, Mr. W. .H. Fuller, on the pond at the head of Fifth street, yesterday, was "a big thing on ice." There was a very large attendance, and the accomplished skater gave the highest gratification. He will give our theatre-goers some idea of what may be done upon parlor skates at the theatre this evening.

We are indebted to the attentive mes sengers of the Adams Express Company for valued favors, the more highly valued inas much as our postal arrangements have bee greatly at fault during the past week.

Homicide.-A notorious character named Michael Allen, was shot and killed at the Barnaby House, in Jeffersonville, last evening by a man named Jenkins. The cause which led to the shooting is not known. Marriages have been frequent of late in Jefferson county. The number of marriag licenses issued by the Clerk of the County Court during the past week was twenty.

We chronicled a few days ago the death Mrs. Maria Clark Burke, the daughter of Col. C. C. Green, of this city. The loss of so gentle and so noble a woman merits more than the simple announcement. The sentiments o generosity and Christian charity, more strong y developed in woman's nature than in man's. ontrolled her life. She was ever forward in charitable enterprises, and was indeed a good angel in the abode of sickness and suffering. After the battle of Shiloh, she, vith a number of other ladies of this city made, a pilgrimage to the battlefield and offered her services in the capacity of nurse to the gallant fellows who fell bleeding on that sanguinary field. Among those who were most watchful and gentle, and whose attentions were most soothing to the poor sufferers was the subject of this brief notice. But she has gone to that region in which there is no more suffering, and the love of the needy and the gratitude of the afflicted have followed BEFIt will be remembered that a few weeks ago the gallant Maj. Platter, of the Fourth Inliana Cavalry, was ambushed by a party of perillas in the neighborhood of Henderson, and that he was shot and badly wounded. He has been absent from his command for some time undergoing treatment for his wounds which were far more serious than was anticipated. We are pleased to learn from the Journal that he passed through Evansville on Wednesday en route for his command.

THE HISTORY OF THE CIVIL WAR IN AMERICA. This work, by John S. C. Abbott, author of he Life of Napoleon, History of the French Revolution, &c., we have no doubt will be one f the most popular and reliable histories that will be written. The author is well known as one of the ablest and most captivating of American writers, and his history of this war nterest but also of great permanent value.

We stated on Thursday that two soldiers had been killed on the Louisville, New Albany, and Chicago Railroad, on Tuesday, by the careess manner of starting the train. We learn iom the New Albany Ledger that the two men were named Wolfing, and that the accident occurred at Orleans, the brothers residing at Paoli.

EAST TENNESSEE UNIONISTS AT WORK .- The Richmond Dispatch of the 20th has intelli-tence that a band of Unionists from the moungence that a band of Unionists from the mountains of East Tennessee and North Carolina attacked the village of Marshall, North Carolina, on the 8th, taking the citizens prisoners, and robbing the whole town of whatever valuables that were movable. When they left they said their next raid would be upon the armory of Ashville, North Carolina. A rebel force had been sent from Knoxville to put down the Union movement.

A PRIZE FIGHT .- Joe Coburn and Tom Mc Jool, of St. Louis, have agreed to fight for $1,000. The articles were signed on the 3d nst. in the New York Clipper office. The match is much talked about in sporting circles

[Extract from a Letter on the Battle-field.]

This battle (Antietam) has been the most sanguinary of the war, and the only one fought with visible design and upon military principles. The arrangement of our corpsthe overlooking position of the commanding General-the sending into action the right and left divisions—the closing up of the centre, and the final success-excites bewildering admiration, and carries the mind to the grea fields of Austerlitz and Wagram, fought by Napoleon. Of all this have I spoken. The heart history of such a conflict, purchased by the life and blood of twenty thousand men, must be found in the hospitals. War has its glories-but it has its ten thousand demons in these human tortures that make the eve-balls ache-the heart bleed-the lips palsy, and the brain reel. The sight is at first positively unendurable. The life-blood of some is trickling away in silent calmness-while the disevered limbs and maniac brain of others giv ise to sounds God grant I may not again wit-

But ye mothers who here seek a son-c wives a husband-or sisters a brother-or ons a father-know and be consoled that even here the hand of mercy is watchful, and better care is bestowed upon your loved ones than might at first seem possible. It was in the hospital, where rested the gallant Hooker that I learned the history of those mythics words so often seen and so little understood "S. T .- 1860-X." Anything alleviating the sufferings and saving the lives of our soldiers, s a national blessing. I witnessed some asonishing results from this article. It is well known the effect of burnt gun lowder and excitement is thirst, which, added o the loss of blood in the wounded, creates the necessity of a reviving stimulant. In this particular hospital, the physicians were allowing their patients to drink Plantation Bitters, otherwise called S. T .- 1860-X, and although the wounded are most numerous here-this division having opened the fight at 5 in the morning-the men were mostly composed and there was very little fainting. The article acts upon the stomach and nerves in a most incomprehensible manner, superior to reaction. It originated in the West Indies composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Roots, Herbs, &c.; all preserved in St. Croix Rum-the S. T.-1860-X being a secret ingredient, not yet revealed to the public. It is principally recommended for want of appetite, disordered liver, intermittent fevers, stomachic difficulties, &c. I understand it was somewhat known in the Southern States previous to the war, and it appears an agent of Jefferson Davis recently applied to the proprietors for the privilege to make it for hospital purposes during the war, to which they made the following reply: NEW YORK, Jan. 16, 1862.

Agent of, etc.:

DEAR SIR: In reply to your communication offering us "Fifty thousand dollars for the recipe and right to make the Plantation Bit ters for your hospital purposes during the war," we beg to say, your price is a liberal one, considering it would cost us nothing to emply, and that otherwise we can derive no evenue from the Southern States; but, sin our duties to our Government and our idea of consistency would not allow us to enter-tain it, although it might please us to assuage the sufferings of your misguided followers.

Very respectfully, yours, P. H. DRAKE & CO.

These gentlemen give the history of certain ingredients of their article for over two hundred years-showing that through all change of the medical profession and its practitioner strength, composure, and cheerfulness hav in the Washington hospitals informed me tha when one day's trial gave him a night's rest The prised our Government has not equalled Jef ferson Davis in energy, and adopted this in valuable article in all our hospitals. tion to this bill. We had arrived at a condition when we could not fill up the army with volunteers, and the question was how should we fill up the army? Every nation had some kind of conscription law, and Congress had the power to raise armies.

Mr. Doolittle said he lad a decision of the Supreme Court justice, which laid down the rule that a distinction was to be made between a person called into service and one who was actually employed, but he further said perhaps it was better that Congress should have declared that the time when a man was in the service might date from the time he was drattervice might date from the time he was dratted or when the order was given to the Governor; but Justice Story was from New England and perhaps disaffected toward the war of 1812, and delivered a dissenting opinion, and 1812, and delivered a dissenting opinion, and that was quoted.

Mr. Sherman claimed that the question really was whether we should fill up our armies and continue the war, or give it up. He would have had the bill made with the proper exceptions. The laws of France and Russia had many wise exceptions which would prevent many hard cases that would occur under a general law. He did not believe the people would give up this contest till the rebellion was crushed. The motion to refer the bill was not sereed to—13 to 18. ot agreed to—13 to 18.

Mr. Lane moved to recommit the bill to the Military Committee, with a view to incorporate some exception.

Mr. McDougal said the Democrats of the loyal States were willing to do all that was necessary to strengthen the Government and retore the Union.

Mr. Doolittle regarded this one of the mos important bills that Congress could pass.

Mr. Rice asked the Senator if he would express his opinion of Horace Greeley.

Mr. Doolittle was perfectly willing to express his opinion. He regarded the course of the New York Tribune in December, 1860, and also the course pursued by that paper latterly as among the most unfortunate occurrences and most mischievous in its tendency. Mr. Latham raised a point that this discussion was out of order; the question was on motion to refer the bill. The Vice-President ecided that it was out of order.
Mr. Doolittle said there had always been the st latitude in such motions. Mr. Wright moved the Senator have leave Lieut. Chamberlain, A. A. A. G., First Cav o go on. NEW YORK, Feb. 6.
The Charleston Mercury of the 29th ult. announces the arrival of the British steamer Flora from Nassau with an assorted cargo. The Times' Washington special says the Special Pacific Railroad Committee have had Special Pacific Railroad Committee have had under consideration some days the Pacific Railroad bill, and authorize Senator McDougall to report it back with several amendments. They modify the former bill so that the amount retained by the government shall not interfere practically with the construction of the road; also make provision for right of way through territories of the United States, omitted in the cell will and confirming the adted in the old bill, and confirming the ad-justment made between conflicting interests. The President sent to the Senate the following additional appointments:
Capt. J. C. Morton to be Brigadier-General; Commissaries of Subsistence, with rank of Captain, E. Worthell and Geo. P. Jacobs, of Illinois; to be A. D. M., with rank of Captain, Capt. A. HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, The indications are that the enemy is very much weakened. His force opposite here is relying upon the impossibility of any move-ment under existing circumstances, and but A heavy snow storm commenced to-day.

Sunday, January 44.— I moved the origade to Wilkinson's Cross-roads and bivouscided there for the night, with the 4th Cavalry.

Monday, January 5th.— I marched through Murfreesboro and took the Manchester pike. One mile out I met the enemy's pickets and and reported the fact to General Stanley, who ordered an advance and took the lead with the 4th Cavalry.

After crossing a small creek, about two miles from Murfreesboro, the bridge over which had been destroyed, the rebels commenced sheling us.

I sent the 3d Kentucky well to the right and front and the 7th Pennsylvania to the left, keeping the 4th Michigan and list and 2d Tennessee in reserve. After some little delay we again advanced and the 4th Michigan, being next to and on the right of the road with one company, advanced as skirmishers, the 3d Kentucky on the right of the road with one company, advanced as skirmishers, the 3d Kentucky on the right of the 4th Michigan, the 1st Tennessee in reserve. In this formation we moved through a cedar thicket, with a dense undergrowth, rendering it almost impossible to force our way through. We had occasional heavy skirmishing with the enemy, who continued to shell us as we advanced.

About six miles out we met the enemy in force. A sharp skirmish ensued, the 4th cavalry, 1st Tennessee infantry, and the 7th Pennsylvania cavalry having to bear the brunt of the fight on our side.

The enemy were driven from the field with heavy loss, and we returned to within a mile and a half of Murfreesboro and went into deserve, for either or both combined would destroy this government if they could succeed. Lay it on to both without mercy. M. T.
